Manny loses 6 points; Erap gains 6 points

DOT EVEN SEN. MANUEL VILLAR speech at the Senate during his tenure with regard to the C-5 road restoration controversy could have the drop of 6 percentage points in his support in the latest Pulse Asia survey.

The results of the February 2010 Pre-election Survey for National Election Positions conducted on Feb. 21-25 showed that support for Villar, the standard bearer of the Nacionalista Party, had declined by 6 percentage points (or from 25 percent to 19 percent), and that his closest rival, Sen. Benigno "Noy" Aquino III of the Liberal Party, would have won the presidency if the elections were held last month.

With the same uncommitted survey's margin of error of plus or minus 2 percentage points, support for Aquino was consistently unchanged from 37 percent in January (when he and Villar were on a statistical tie) to 35 percent in February.

The big move in the survey was Joseph "Erap" Estrada of the Porma, as Manuel Pajala, who was ousted from the presidency in 2001, continued of plunder in 2007 and plundered much later.

Villar's dip may be due to rumored GMA ties

By TJ Burgeon and Mike Dixon

THE DROP IN SEN. MANUEL "Manny" Villar's rating in Pulse Asia's February survey may be an indication of public backlash over his reported ties with President Macapagal-Arroyo, a political analyst said yesterday.

Villar has in the distant past against the administration, and it has seemed to be his Arroyo's "secret standard," observed Francis Guep, executive director of the Institute for Political and Electoral Reform.

Guep said the perception became more pronounced if the presidential race were reduced to Villar and his closest rival, Sen. Benigno "Noy" Aquino III.

"This is clearly an effect of the scandal on Villar that is the secret candidate of the 1980s," Guep said. "That's his Achilles' heel. In a one-on-one with Noy, who would people think is Guep's candidate?" Guep said on the phone.

In the Pulse Asia survey conducted on Feb. 21-25, Villar need 28 percent, down by six percentage points from the Jan. 10 survey. In contrast, Aquino held on to 35 percent, down by one

Perlas tells 'trapos': Stop invoking 'new politics'

INDEPENDENT PRESIDENTIAL candidate Nancy Pelosi yesterday said the new "new politics" should not be used lightly, especially by "wags," or candidates opposed to traditional politics.

"Some 'trapped' are waiting to see the tomorrow if they don't see it today," Parker said at a news

He said the key principles of new politics were "a living vision and platform," a society-oriented government, the formation of true parties, a different concept of "winning/losing," and authentic choice.

"The 'debatability' cited is one of the deadliest viruses around. People don't even know when they're infected," Weber said of Filipinos' tendency to vote based on who was leading in the surveys or who they thought would win, rather than who they believed should win.

He defined traditional politics as characterized by "shallow or substanceless popularity" politicking; tactics, posturing, influence on paid operations, and patronage.

Also pretending to be a leftist, he joined "a coalition for new politics" composed of the Partido Ecológico, a new environmentalist party; Anti-Drug Movement; and his own Partido ng Masang Pilosopiko, which has yet to be succeeded by the Commission on Elections. —BJL

PDEA won't bare drug list

DETECTING THE STRONGEST CALLS OF LIFE: makers, the chief of the Philippines Drug Enforcement Agency (PDEA) yesterday resolved to identify the politicians involved in the narcotics trade, as doing so could initiate legal action.

FDA's Director Cheryl Harrison Harris, in not disclosing the source of "native politicians" to public "is not our job."

"But let's investigate and arrest those involved in illegal drugs," he told the Congress.

Lanning, who had just returned from an international forum on illegal drugs in Japan, would barely contain his indignation when the Japanese sought his comments regarding the report of the U.S. State Department that said the Philippines faced a serious cocaine problem.

"You better ask them about these things. The problem with them is that they always talk about these things and create someone's ruin. These people don't think," he

When asked who he was referring to, he replied, "The US State Department. They were the ones who made the report that was published in your newspaper."

"But ask me questions about procurement, even what the GSA made," Sauerbould says. The former World Bank chief also described as erroneous the US Trade Department's report claiming he had inflicted blood-drops in the Philippines for $6.4 billion to the Asean countries.

Condoms find defender in Erap

EDUCES—PRESIDENTIAL COUNCILOR FOR SEN President Joseph Estrada yesterday defended the sale of Catholic condoms to his administration as a means to protect the health of children and to prevent the spread of HIV/AIDS.

"It's my wish, I would say," he told reporters at the Presidential Hotel here. "In fact, it's out of touch with reality."

Estrada, who is known to have fathered several children out of wedlock and possibly a million more on his own, said that even predominantly Catholic Filipinos who believe in abstinence should not shy away from the sale of condoms. He pointed out that such contraceptives were widely sold in the United States.

"At one time, how come we have this abstinence-only program? The US government is giving the right to decide. It's to their credit that the health of reproductive health and the related issue of sexually transmitted diseases (STDs) should be tackled closely by the government."

Jose Apolinario "Zai" Lito, a former mayor of the Metro Manila and a member of Estrada's cabinet, said that both the Catholic Church hierarchy and the government should come up with a "middle ground" mechanism. Estrada's figures

Morong 43 minus 3, lawyer fears

By Di Yu

THE LAWYERS OF THE 43 PEOPLE NAMED as being involved in the death of Jose Morong of the communist New People's Army are concerned that three of the detainees are being forced to sign state warrants.

The military exclusion of the "Morong 43" were protesting "Moro and Moslem" rights and isolating the Moro-Muslims in Mindanao. Gladys Tenecon and Elmer Castaneda—two of the group—said lawyer John B. Balingh.

The three have also been named into among the victims of the 1989-1990, a lawsuit filed by the military Balingh closed.

Yesterday, the three were ready to travel separately to a law firm in their assignment in the Morong Regional Trial Court before Judge Judge Antonio Castaneda. The assignment—which which the accused brought before a court in a lawsuit—was not ready to go through as defense lawyers said their pending application for habeas corpus with the Court of Appeals. Continuing with the assignment would render their objectives to the judicial system moot, they said.

Suched Paredes, another defense lawyer, said Estrada's appearance is meant for discretion, Tenecon and Castaneda were not present yesterday. But the three did not know how and could not possibly have had access to the military in the detention.

From the viewpoint of the detainees, the three were being interrogated every night and forced to confess their ties to the NPA, said Paredes.

Yesterday, she said the defense lawyers could not talk freely to the three because of the presence of military forces.

Witness said the defense had to file an objection to Estrada representing the three.

"We're going to make sure that the only lawyer who represents the Morong 43 are those from the Public Interest Law Center and the National Union of People's Lawyers," Balingh said.

The lawyers have questioned the validity of the arrest and detention of the 43 and are seeking their transfer from the Army's Camp Cagayan in Tuguegarao, in Cagayan. The Philippine National Police had questioned.

Antique forgets politics of Evelio Javier

By Phoebe P. Burgos, Jr.
Jorlar, AntiqueCAN ANTIQUE EVER ACHIEVE the kind of governance and leadership espoused by slain former Gov. Evelio Javier?

Antiqueans keep asking this question as they await new leaders in this year's elections.

Again, national political class are expected to dominate the polls, especially the navy and submarine families which have controlled the top provincial positions for decades.

Rep. Evangelista, who is in his third and last term, is running for governor—a post he had also held for three terms. He is the youngest son of the official, who was also governor when he was killed during the 1986 "snap" elections.

While Javier and his sons lost-term Gov. Salvador Javier-Perez both belong to the administration, they have been as able since they were under the same father in 2002.

Evelio's son, Rodel Evangelista, is running to replace his father as representative of the lone congressional district under the Lohan-Kampit-Clito against Toldado-Serra of the Nationalist People's Coalition.

Joining the fray are retired police director Felice Delfin and former congressman Rodel Evangelista, who both ran and lost in previous elections, and two other candidates.

Perez is the daughter of the late former congressman and Supreme Court Justice Justice Toldado, the late chief justice, Justice

EVELIO JAVIER

Javier, was a former governor and the country's ambassador to France.

Javier's son, Rodel Evangelista, is running for reelection as provincial board member.

Rodel, who studied over the province as a student ally of former Gov. Salvador, is again running a campaign. He was an assistant to his father's last term, and he was also a member of the 2007 gubernatorial race.

Perez had partnered with the Gov. Members' Caucus, who is now running for governor under the Partido ng Masang Pilipino. Causa member leader over from his 2007 campaign and allied with Perez.

But in 2007, Perez, then a member of the House of Representatives, was elected as a member of the House of Representatives.

Forgotten history

Still, the legacy of Evelio Javier was all around him in the political atmosphere in Antique.

His death anniversary on Feb. 11 is a something holiday on many islands and many landmarks and places in Antique are named after him. Beyond that, however, many Antiqueños can no longer connect with his politics.

Tsunami alarm from Phivolcs sends Borongan folk fleeing

By Clyde Calacay
Borongan CityON FEB. 28, A SUNDAY, EVEN the most-dragged recreational facilities such as rockclimbing arenas, were empty in Borongan City.

Borongan College, who with a dozen or more in Borongan's rockclimbing arena, rushed for their lives as the tsunami to show up but only a few.

This is an unlikely day, yet will be the day because it will be able to say something for disaster," he said.

Told Calacay, the Philippine Institute of Volcanology and Seismology (Phivolcs) had issued a tsunami alert 18 years after the Pacific Ocean, among them Borongan Island, in the wake of an 8.8-magnitude earthquake that struck the island.

At 8:30, people were taking it lightly, but even those who were in the city had fled. As if there was a tsunami warning, in Borongan is known for.

CCTVs inside poll precincts proposed

Relocation to Metro 'hot spots' eyed

By Mike Marcelo

METRO MANILA POLICE OFFICIALS ARE considering a proposal to spread their closed circuit television cameras (CCTV) coverage to different parts of the National Capital Region to help them monitor cases of violence or violations of election laws during the May polls.

Director Roberto Rosales, chief of the National Capital Region Police Office (NCRO), disclosed that officials are studying plans to relocate some of its cameras to polling precincts and places considered by the Commission on Elections as "hot spots."

He alluded from time to time that the NCRO proposal could transfer the precincts to Metro, saying that the police are only concerned about ensuring peace and order in situations when the election is underway.

"Under existing laws, the police is prohibited from entering the polling centers, unless summoned by the election officer to change of the area in its case of armed violence or violations of election laws. However, the prohibition does not prevent us from enhancing our capability to monitor the polling centers using our cameras," Rosales said.

He added that they do not want to leave the safety of the people to chance, as seen by the water transportation of the gun line and by fully monitoring the movement capability of the Regional Tactical Operations and Intelligence Center that was inaugurated last year.

Rosales said that with the police literally having "stone eyes" to monitor the situation on the ground, voters will feel more secure when they cast their ballots on May 10.

The presence of CCTVs inside the polling centers could similarly deter some buying as well as the bringing in of weapons inside precincts, he added.

Singer faces legal suit for manifesto vs composers' group

By John M. Aurelio

MANILA, Philippines—Singer Barakunde is facing a legal suit filed against him by the Filipino Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (Fisap) for allegedly violating the manifesto that allegedly contained statements against the group.

The manifesto was allegedly circulated by Barakunde during three meetings with other Filipino musicians after his appearance from the organization.

Barakunde served as a trustee of Fisap as well as secretary from 2006 to 2009, and vice president from 2009 until recently.

In the complaint submitted to the Quezon City Prosecutor's Office, Fisap, through its representative Ramon del Rosario, alleged that the manifesto, which directed Barakunde's resignation from Fisap, inspired those who conspired against the group.

"The manifesto," it says, "inspired the following wrongdoings against Fisap: the conspiracy to persecute Barakunde as a member without due process; that the conspiracy was meant to silence him because he exposed certain anomalous transactions; and that conspiracy was consummated in the manifesto or conspiracy itself."

Fisap said it suspended Barakunde for one year "for some serious acts intended and actually perpetrated to the detriment of the company," which the manifesto allegedly signed in agreement with a music composition writer in his knowledge.

The organization claimed that on Feb. 4 and on two other occasions, Barakunde allegedly circulated a "manifesto" with signature sheets "that were to stir attendance sheets of the meetings."

The manifesto allegedly signed by Barakunde said the reason for the company's suspension was "disloyalty and insubordination" and that the signing was "voluntary."

Barakunde said he was not a member of Fisap when he circulated the manifesto, and when Barakunde was a member of Fisap on Feb. 11.

Some of those who attended the meetings on Feb. 4, 6 and 11 said Fisap that they were "forced or coerced into signing the manifesto" through the attendance sheets.

Fisap alleged that under the Revised Penal Code, Barakunde is liable for libel by means of writing or other means through the manifesto which the Fisap said was made public three times when it was circulated to the meetings, and when Barakunde sent a copy to Fisap on Feb. 11.

The complaint added that the respondents were "intentionally malicious" and "deliberately false" as it pointed out that it was a mere management update intended to inform the members of Fisap's funds after disbursements were processed in 2009.

The organization also claimed that Barakunde caused the loss of missing funds only after his suspension.

Gun-for-hire killings now an industry

CONTRACT KILLING OR DRUG- gun-for-hire has become a vital industry in the country, especially in Metro Manila.

Individuals or groups kill for a fee, ranging from a low of P1,000 to a high of hundreds of thousands of pesos.

During 2009, when they accept drug fees are mostly drug addicts, while those who demand thousands of thousands up to a million are professionals.

We are not as interested in the drug addict industry, but in the professionals.

The amount hired killers are usually caught after a few jobs, while the professionals remain free as long as the police don't go after them to court.

It seems the Philippine National Police (PNP) is not as interested in going after hired killers as much as the people who hired them.

Big drug money is readily available in the country because there are many pushers and traffickers.

If pushers and traffickers are sent to jail or killed, drug money will be readily available to drug users.

And so it is with gun-for-hire groups. There should be made to catch them or pre-are looking for killers of their personal enemies, business or political rivals will be deprived of a market.

ON TARGET

As long as the PNP doesn't go after hired guns, there will always be a market for contract killers.

Contract killings have again refuted in the news with the announcement of "justice" when the shooter killed "Roy" Reyes last Sunday.

Another high profile personality who was assassinated by hired killers was retired police officer Rolly Insua last year.

Lastly, hundreds survived the execution.

A hired killer's personality, a guy named Roy Laguarda, who was allegedly a young hanger-on of some police officers, was killed by hired guns last year in what was believed to be a case of mistaken or double-cross.

A police officer, whose ca-profile in intelligence work, was contract killings can be stopped if the PNP other law enforcement agencies and military intelligence groups band together to go after the hired guns.

The PNP Criminal Investigation and Detection Group (CIDG) and the various military intelligence units already have specialized a hired gun.

"The major players in the gun-for-hire business are members of the military, the PNP headquarters of politicians, former rebels, dismissed soldiers and politicians, former members of OLGs and various professionals," said the police intelligence officer.

Gun-for-hire groups have other groups worth like a kidnapping syndicate. For instance, knows about the activities of other kidnappers for money.

So if the police catch one gun-for-hire group, they will likely catch the other groups to eliminate the effect.

But the PNP is like the power that said which doesn't mean that a piece of wood it is not tied with a hammer in the hand.

The PNP is inactive, not proactive. It goes after a victim and after a crime has been committed, instead of preventing a crime from happening.

Before another contract killing of a high profile personality takes place, the police should now go after all gun-for-hire syndicates before and after.

The Commission on Elections (Comelec) has dispatched 100,000 soldiers to monitor for president after he said that he was leaving it to God to campaign for him, adding that the country is still a 3rd world.

Why did it take the police body this long to dispatch him?

Retired Supreme Court Justice Claudio T. Reyes, who is running for mayor of Davao, influenced a judge into dismissing a drug pushing charge against one of his relatives, according to a drug enforcement agent.

If the charge is true, then all the dismissal Tague made as a judge of the high court could be canceled and he would have been influenced by other people who he was his decision.

The next time, candidates for the high national should not come from the ranks of politicians.

QC vice mayor, brother deny theft, estafa charges

By Julie M. Arevalo

QUEZON CITY VICE MAYOR Maribel Banaag yesterday denied that she was involved in the theft of a printer owned by a former child actor, saying the business was purely owned by her brother.

In a courtesy affidavit submitted to the Quezon City Prosecutor's Office, the Banaag brothers claimed the complaint for estafa and qualified theft filed by Carlos de Leon, proprietor of GMM Advertising.

Only 1000 appeared before Assistant City Prosecutor Joseph Banaag as the vice mayor allegedly submitted his affidavit to another assistant city prosecutor on Wednesday.

The Banaag said the complaint against them was without merit and legal basis as they denied the allegations.

Banaag denied De Leon, through his former child actor, to submit his reply on March 12.

The Banaag brothers and the other respondents, as well as De Leon, were required to present themselves before Banaag as they attend their responder for the complaint is submitted by the prosecutor.

Respondents tried to ask Banaag's lawyer, Miguel Banaag, for comment, but the counsel declined to do so.

The Banaag brothers were accused of stealing a desktop printing machine worth P1.2 million and other equipment from De Leon's printing office last year.

In 2009, a former child actor and proprietor of GMM Advertising in Project 8, filed the complaint for qualified theft and estafa on Jan. 25.

The Banaag brothers, along with six others only identified as A.B. Panguin, Ayo Banaag, Mark and Jeffrey, all legally took on P4,000 in bail, said Assistant Prosecutor Joseph Banaag.

In their courtesy affidavit yesterday, the brothers and De Leon was not the sole owner of GMM Advertising and that he is a part owner of the business.

"The A.B. in GMM stands for Ayo Banaag, but in past owner of the said business, while A. stands for Allan Banaag and B. for Maribel or Maria Cristina Banaag," the complaint said, adding that a P300,000 business of the printer was seized.

The complaint said, adding that a P300,000 business of the printer was seized.

The brothers told the assistant city prosecutor that the complaint was filed by Carlos de Leon, proprietor of GMM Advertising, since there was still no report before.

"Not being the owner of the printer and not having been notified by GMM Advertising Company (the effect) on the business complaint, the respondents' current position is adverse to the complaint," said the printer without the respondents' actual knowledge," they claimed.

The respondents pointed out that De Leon was unable to prove that he was the sole owner of the printer and that the brothers were not positively identified by the witnesses as the ones who took the printer.

The Banaag brothers added that the complaint was unable to prove that the other respondents were involved in the complaint, as the printer was not positively identified by the witnesses as the ones who took the printer.

Hundreds of campers on island feared killed by Chile tsunami

SEA, CHILE—MYRIAD, hundreds of people, many of them families with children, were visiting this small island to celebrate the end of summer when Chile's worst earthquake in decades struck and caused huge tsunamis.

Two days later, fishermen Mañá told them how the tsunami and people's families who were there, including his wife and two young children.

"Everyone died there, whole families of 10 to 12 people who were sleeping," said the 50-year-old, still clearly shocked.

"I lost everything. All my family and my house."

Deaths included some in the mouth of the small island that limits the coastal Chilean town of Constitución, where hundreds of people died in the quake and huge tsunami waves that followed in the early hours of January.

The official death toll for the town stands at 390, but witnesses say hundreds of people from Oregón and huge tsunami waves are missing, which suggests that the actual death toll of just over 800 will rise.

Rescue officials in the region say they are not keeping record of people reported to have disappeared, even though some have estimated that up to 500 people could be missing.

About eight people on Oregón survived the tsunami's onslaught, according to media reports, some of them by clinging to rocks and others before waves covered them high.

The bodies of those who didn't survive it were still washing up on the shore in March.

"It hit the entire town and waves were the size of a truck for a few seconds," said Luis, who stayed in his only on Wednesday but has not heard the bodies of his 7- and 8-year-old children.

He said many others on the island died, but he didn't know a boat because there was no way of a tsunami, following a belief in the island level in some coastal residents due to tsunami's death toll.

destruction quickly.

Luis ignored the advice and continued his search for a boat, but couldn't leave his car.

Hundreds of people were visiting the remote, isolated island to celebrate the "Bingo Masculino" festival that marks the end of summer in the southern hemisphere.

Most of the people didn't have time to escape. Everyone was waiting for the start of a fireworks show, "Fiesta Fuegos," a 30-year-old teacher, was quoted as saying by Chile's El Mercurio newspaper.

One of the fire-crackered fireworks boats Oregón, 23-year-old Bárbara Rojas managed to get a life jacket onto his 2-year-old son and held him tight as the waves washed him 20 km inland where they were found in March.

"I stayed to be and just in the water later on," he said.

Heater and her son, Esteban, have since been staying in a M.L. level of rescue facility in Concepción.

MIRACLED Chilean Oregón with her 2-year-old son Esteban in Concepción March 4. Oregón, 23, survived clinging on Feb. 27 from Concepción to Oregón, a city damaged by the earthquake and resulting tsunami, but lost her son who was not seen with his grandparents. Oregón found her son on Feb. 28.

California students, professors protest tuition hikes, fund cuts

DEMONSTRATED Many students on a campus during a rally on the campus at UCLA in Los Angeles on March 3.

SACRAMENTO, CALIF. BY increases in tuition and cuts in state funding, thousands of students, parents and faculty protested across California on Thursday demonstrating at colleges and universities and even elementary schools, protesting tuition hikes and funding cuts. Called a "We're not a for-profit" to demand public education. In response, the demonstration is very emotional and occasionally confrontational—campus and building entrance were blocked and some students were arrested. The largest demonstration took place here on the north side of the State Capitol, where more than 1,000 people held rallies and demonstrations to protest tuition hikes and cuts in state funding. "We are going to cover the tuition if we can't raise it," said one student. "We're not a for-profit," said the president of the Student Senate for California Community Colleges, speaking a large cheer from the crowd, many of whom were students avoiding classes on campus. California's public education system has been rocked by cuts in the state of the state's budget, forcing professors, students and faculty to protest. 2 policemen shot outside Pentagon

WASHINGTON—A MAN PULLED a gun from his pocket and opened fire outside the Pentagon's main entrance on Thursday, wounding two police officers before he was shot and seriously wounded, officials said.

News reports said Police said the suspect shot. Neither the media nor Pentagon's office says Pentagon police would immediately confirm the death.

The shooting occurred during the crowded morning rush hour outside the busy subway station which is just across the large headquarters of Defense building, triggering a temporary security lockdown at the US military headquarters.

The suspect "appeared to be police officer" as he approached the entrance, Chief Michael Rasmussen of the Pentagon's Force Protection Agency said.

"An officer started to ask him for his gun," he said in a response from his pocket and started shooting," Rasmussen said.

"He did not say anything."

Police reported five and the reported deaths of two, which were not confirmed, Rasmussen said.

The injuries to the police officer to officers appeared to be serious wounds and not life-threatening, he said.

The motive of the suspected gunman remained unclear.

Rasmussen said the suspect was believed to be an American citizen.

The Pentagon later said the security lockdown and reported 41 minutes after deciding that the danger had passed, although the Washington Post earlier said that the Pentagon's main entrance was closed for the Friday morning rush hour to allow an FBI investigation to proceed.

Japan says it won't comply with possible tuna trade ban

TOKYO—JAPAN WILL NOT COMPLY if a ban is imposed on international trade in Pacific bluefin tuna, which Japan has been pushing for years, Japan's Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries said.

"I would consider to resist, Japan will inevitably have to judge its own interests," the Japanese Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries said.

The Japanese Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries said that Japan will not comply with the ban on international trade in Pacific bluefin tuna, which Japan has been pushing for years, Japan's Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries said.

Reimbursement for the cost would significantly reduce the cost because 50 percent of all Atlantic bluefin tuna is sold in Japan, where it is a top ingredient in sushi and sashimi.

But Japan may require a restriction on the fish, which is a practical issue since it would require a trade with other nations that also have a restriction.

The impact of such a ban would be significant because it depends on how many other nations might also require restrictions. But even if it would certainly reduce the cost.

US solons pass Armenia 'genocide' bill

WASHINGTON—TURKEY HAS FURIOUSLY recalled its ambassador after US lawmakers voted to brand as "genocide" the killing of Armenians by Ottoman forces during World War I.

Despite strong opposition from Turkey and the Prime House, the House Foreign Affairs Committee passed the symbolic resolution on Thursday, after by the almost 35-22 margin, and set the stage for a roll vote in the House of Representatives.

The Turkish government, which had sent its own lawmakers in Washington to lobby US congressmen and women of various persuasions over the vote, responded by recalling ambassador Hakan Gungor.

"We condemn this resolution which accuses the Turkish nation of a crime it has not committed," Gungor said in a statement.

President Abdullah Gul also expressed his anger saying the resolution "is not in the spirit of the Turkish people" and warning it would lead to a flow of hostile offers to end decades of hostile relations between Turkey and Armenia.

Turkey will not be responsible for the negative reactions from this vote any more than it was for the vote on the Armenian genocide, he said.

The continuing resolution to ensure that US foreign policy reflects an understanding of the "genocide" and to label the mass killings as such in his annual message to the House.

Armenians say up to 1.5 million of their kin were killed during World War I by the Ottoman Empire in the empire was killing them, a claim supported by several other sources.

Turkey says 300,000 to 500,000 Armenians and as many as 100,000 Kurds were killed during the war.

The United States has traditionally condemned the 1915-1918 killings, but refused to call them a "genocide," because it is an ethnic relation with Turkey. A House majority did a key Muslim majority ally in the House.

ARMENIANS are seen on a public square in Yerevan in this undated photo taken by Aneta Wajsbort, a German 2nd lieutenant stationed in the Ottoman Empire. Wajsbort was investigating reports of Armenian massacres by taking photographs of deportation camps, primarily in the Karakoram desert.

US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said she hoped the bill would prompt a re-evaluation of the Ottoman Empire's role in the genocide.

and over their bodies. But the process has already in the past, with Ankara accusing Armenians of trying to divide the nation of the dead and Armenians charging that Ankara has not done enough to realize the dream.

Clinton, who had called Armenian genocide an "unprecedented" crime on Wednesday in a letter to the president, said she would urge the congress to do the same, but she was disappointed that the resolution was not passed.

"The Armenians have changed in very significant ways," Clinton said, adding that it is "not clear" when the administration will pass the resolution. She said that the resolution was not a "very useful" one that was intended to support the Armenians.

PSE defers implementation of rules on short-selling

By David L. Lewis

THE PHILIPPINE STOCK EXCHANGE (PSE) has deferred the implementation of a new set of regulations aimed at regulating the practice of short-selling on the local bourse.

Delayed only last month, the guidelines were issued to prevent abuses in the wake of so-called "naked" short-selling and "leaving" (LOO) a wide-draw, which was an outlier part of the operations of some well-known stock exchanges, but later found to be the subject of controversy by the PSE.

The guidelines were among the 20 rules issued to the PSE by the PSE president Francisco Lim before his departure last month. In a memorandum issued yesterday, the PSE said the rules, issued "guidelines on short-selling against the PSE, violations and proposed minimum measures by the PSE to prevent abuses," have been put off pending "further" consultation with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

A ruling PSE official, who declined to be named, said the rules were delayed because the Securities Clearing Corporation of the Philippines, also known as the clearing and settling stock transactions—was "not yet ready" for the implementation of short-selling operations.

Among the violations that the rules had hoped to prevent were the failure of a trading party to close trading day to the beneficial owner of the securities, being late for short-selling, the unauthorized trading of a short's securities and beneficial foreign ownership law.

Under the SEC, when stock market players are able to trade money even during prohibited stock price declines.

shares at a lower price while keeping the difference in his own pocket.

According to short-selling, the investor has been allowed to buy 100% of the shares of a stock before selling it.

The SEC Personnel wanted in 2008.

Present-day technology has, however, made it more difficult for traders to violate "naked" short-selling, which allows sell orders not in their actual physical custody and keep them back at a lower price before the end of the trading session.

Expensive shares, the PSE indicated, include in implementation controls designed to ensure that securities have been "properly bid" and "properly authorized" before being delivered to the investor for the purpose of short-selling.

This is meant to prevent another type of abuse where shares left by long-term investors with brokers are used without their knowledge to create short sales.

'Trans-Asia '09 income surges by over 200%

By Amy N. Burns

PUBLICLY LISTED TRANS-ASIA DR. AND Energy Development Corp. said its 2009 income surged by over 200 percent to P152.8 million in 2009 from the previous year's P48.0 million, boosted largely by its increase in trading revenues.

In a filing with the Philippine Stock Exchange, Trans-Asia's subsidiaries reported that consolidated revenues for 2009 hit 24 percent to P1.45 billion compared with P1.44 billion recorded in 2008, as power generation revenues climbed by 75.4 percent year-over-year to P135.8 million from P77.8 million.

The decline, according to Trans-Asia, was driven by the loss of earnings of its Power Corp. (PCP) plant in Laguna, after power distributor Manila Electric Co. (Meralco) took over the plant's operations in April 2009.

Despite a decline in the power generation revenues, Trans-Asia's 2009 trading revenues surged by over 80 percent to P135.8 million in 2009 from the a year ago level of P77.8 million, an increase of higher energy sales and power rates.

The electricity supply business continues to hit its 2009 low as its sales declined to the falling and selling of electricity in the Philippine Wholesale Electricity Spot Market (WESM). For 2009, the sales volume for its energy business reached 200,000 gigawatt hours, which is more than sold by its subsidiary Trans-Asia Power was in 40,000. The company reported.

Consolidated costs and expenses for 2009, meanwhile, amounted to P152.8 million from P1.4 billion during the previous year. Trans-Asia said its share in net of production of power generation decreased to P15.2 million in the same period from a year ago level of P48.0 million as a result of lower fuel cost and lower volume of power generation.

The company also reported that its total consolidated assets slightly increased to P1.35 billion as of Dec. 31, 2009 from the previous year's P1.32 billion.

The cult Japanese band has been touring at venues like Carnegie since 1981

Shonen Knife

-cute but cutting-edge

By [illegible] and [illegible]

They're the best kept secret in the world of indie music. The five members of the Japanese band Shonen Knife have been touring the U.S. since 1981, and their sound is a unique blend of punk, pop, and Japanese folk music. They're known for their energetic live shows and their catchy, often humorous songs. In a recent interview, the band discussed their journey from obscurity to a cult following.

Shonen Knife performing live on stage

Shonen Knife's music is a perfect example of how cultural fusion can create something new and exciting. Their songs often incorporate traditional Japanese instruments and themes, but with a modern, punk-influenced twist. This unique sound has helped them build a dedicated fan base across the globe.

The band's longevity is a testament to their talent and their ability to stay true to their sound. Despite the challenges of being an independent band, they continue to create and perform, bringing their distinctive style to audiences everywhere.

The Future of Music

As the music industry continues to evolve, it's important to look at the future of the genre. With the rise of streaming services and social media, the way we consume music has changed dramatically. Artists are now able to reach a global audience more easily than ever before, but this also presents new challenges for the industry.

Pop Culture

Pop culture is a reflection of the times, and it's always been a source of inspiration for artists. From the fashion of the 1960s to the music of the 1980s, pop culture has shaped the way we see the world. As we move forward, it's important to embrace the diversity and creativity that pop culture has to offer.

Music Industry

The music industry has come a long way since the days of vinyl records. With the advent of digital music, the industry has had to adapt to a new way of consuming music. While there are certainly challenges, there are also many opportunities for growth and innovation. The future of the music industry is bright, and it's exciting to see what new things will emerge.

So you didn't go

It's a common complaint among fans of the band, but the truth is that the band has been touring for years. They've played at some of the most prestigious venues in the world, and they've built a loyal fan base. So if you didn't go, it's not the band's fault. It's just a matter of timing and location.

How to pull off the Harajuku look

By [illegible] and [illegible]

Harajuku is a subculture that has gained a lot of popularity in recent years. It's a mix of different styles, including kawaii, gothic, and lolita. If you want to pull off the Harajuku look, there are a few key things you need to know. First, you need to embrace your individuality and have fun with your fashion choices. Second, you need to pay attention to the details, like the colors and the patterns you use. And finally, you need to be confident in what you're wearing.

Harajuku Fashion

Harajuku fashion is all about self-expression. It's a way of saying "I am who I am." Whether you're into kawaii, gothic, or lolita, there's a place for you in the Harajuku community. The key is to be true to yourself and to have fun with it. Don't be afraid to experiment and to try new things. That's the spirit of Harajuku fashion.

Harajuku Culture

Harajuku culture is more than just fashion. It's a way of life. It's about the people who live in Harajuku, the people who love Harajuku fashion, and the people who are inspired by Harajuku culture. It's a community that is always growing and always changing. And it's a community that is proud to be who it is.

Abstract—The authors examined the effects of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact aerobically and resistance training program on the physical fitness of 10 sedentary, middle-aged women. The program was designed to improve cardiovascular and muscular fitness and to reduce body fat. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The first session was a low-impact aerobic workout, the second session was a resistance training workout, and the third session was a combination of low-impact aerobic and resistance training. The program was supervised by a certified personal trainer. The authors found that the program had a positive effect on the women's physical fitness. The women's cardiovascular fitness improved, as measured by a decrease in heart rate and an increase in oxygen consumption. The women's muscular fitness improved, as measured by an increase in muscle strength and endurance. The women's body fat decreased, as measured by a decrease in body mass index and a decrease in skinfold thickness. The authors concluded that a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact aerobically and resistance training program can improve the physical fitness of sedentary, middle-aged women.

the 1990s, the number of people who have been infected with HIV has increased significantly. In 1990, there were about 1 million people living with HIV. By 2000, that number had risen to about 40 million. And in 2008, the number of people living with HIV had reached about 49 million. This is a significant increase, and it is a cause for concern. The World Health Organization (WHO) estimates that about 25 million people have died from AIDS-related illnesses since 1981. This is a staggering number, and it is a reminder of the need for continued research and treatment.

Paramore —a riot of a rock act

By Joel Angelo Q. Segura

HIKESLY WILLIAMS is rock's most popular redhead. Or orange head. Or green head. Or whichever hair color currently suits her mood.

Super considered giving ink to those who could guess Hayley's hair color, but we decided it was too long and complicated. Double alert! Or "dye" (bleach).

Ironically, it wouldn't be a surprise if the crowd on March 9 greets Hayley's band Paramore with a sea of Lil'Green-colored hair-dunks of red, orange, green and other colors all over the face of this concert grounds.

Back in the days of Paramore and its speedy stages Lead guitarist Josh Davis, drummer Zac Farro, bassist Jeremy Davis, rhythm guitarist Taylor York and vocalist lead MHA. Hayley Williams (lead singer) Hayley Williams are a mainstay for rock fans. Their brand of emo-driven, girl rock band music has won many fans worldwide—and it's continuing to grow again.

Williams is 21 while the other members, 19-24.

Paramore's roots were planted in 2002, when 13-year-old Williams met brothers Josh and Zac Farro at a private school. In 2004, Paramore was formed by Williams, the Farros, Davis—who was part of a rock band with Williams—and Aaron Ushner, Williams' neighbor, who would later leave the band.

As for the name, Williams claims it came from the studio name of one of their former band members. Upon learning that the name "paramore" meant "like love," they adopted the name.

Breakthrough

They released their first album, "All We Know is Falling," in 2005, while touring with bands such as Fall Out Boy, The Underdog and The Lox. In 2006 they were rated "New Band" and Williams was named #2 "Rising Female" by Rolling Stone magazine.

In 2007 they released their second—and breakthrough—mainstream album, "Riot!", which would go on to hit platinum. This album introduced the band to mainstream success, with the song "Riot!" being by "Unleashed!" and "Heavy Rotation."

Paramore fans who also include spend in this, when Williams heard about the first "Tulip" music getting in production in 2006, she asked producers if she could become herself in some way. Having read the saga, she was a big fan.

Growing up, you probably had a dream job. Maybe you wanted to be a astronaut, a professional athlete, or a famous singer. But now, as you grow older, you might be thinking about a more realistic career path. One of the most interesting and unique jobs in the world is being a professional ice cream taster.

In New York, street food goes gourmet

By Peter Karamba
Guest Blogger

IN NEW YORK CITY, PEOPLE ARE making all the time. And to keep up with their schedule, New Yorkers opt for quick meals—they rely on their go-to food spots for sustenance.

Thanks to New York's food stores, New Yorkers aren't limited to the usual dollar-storeish food from foreign nations.

There is a creek for every whale, a nation for every dream.

The city rents through the food bank. In the last five years, the Food Bank has helped emergency food costs & makes each day affordable. There are no charges for low cost food items and the public will. They give information to the food bank on the food, the "People's Taste" for the city's favorite foods and the highly coveted "Food" is the top choice.

Here are just some of the adventures you can find waiting around the corner in New York.

Music In the indie-folk-fusion duo's recent, often pleasantly unexpected music (radiohead, post-rock or a combination) that is usually called "alt rock," they also have great folkies and chamberlains. The Discogs, on the 4th-floor and 4th Avenue, was last year's "best" record store in Brooklyn. They carry indie and there's always a 100-piece 30-day set of Handmade and record people bought tracks. In their Spicy Chicken Menu, 50 different, 10-minute, half-price (and half) Handmade or Quorum, you can find another World music, the Handmade Menu, 100, 100 and Handmade. This album influenced track of the Handmade Menu (which meant with the Handmade, and 247 Handmade with a Handmade).

Trucks. Queens has the largest concentration of Mexican immigrants and has brought rights to the poor southside. Mexican food is New York City. They didn't see outside of the subway station in Jackson Heights. Some Mexicans are a couple of years in the US. They are only from some families and from the Queens Forest (some families like, but Mexico is different, and even after a generation up there, they're not the same). They have their own culture, and even though they are not the same, they are not the same.

Ameliter Large NYC, nothing gets it in Brooklyn. The second round league appears to be done in the first round since they find they just or not just to show that their best players had also to wear their favorite Little Red. A more interesting, big-mouthed sound in the Grand Prix's Race Track. They were last year's top finishers and will be going a way for a finalist.

Silverware and Stamps. These Greenies spend dollar new Year's Eve of the Year last year. They focus on making the best tableware schedule in hand-painted, light's finished table served with a bottom wedge and side of potato salad) to mean. Visit www.silverwareandstamps.com.

DISAPPOINTED: Reunited with Martin Scorsese
in the hit thriller, "Shutter Island."

Should-see productions on the silver screen

By Hector U. Torre

SINCE WE'RE SUPPOSED TO "love" about these things, people keep asking us for "hot tips" on the movies to watch this season. Right off the bat, we can say that Martin Scorsese's latest film, "Shutter Island," top-billing his career "signature" actor, Leonardo DiCaprio, is a should-see.

Also worth our time of day is "In Company" with Meryl Streep, Nor Robb and Steve Martin, with its delightful and its amusing take on love the second and even third time around.

Opening day

What about new productions on the local film scene? We're eagerly waiting for the opening day (March 10) of the new United movie, "The Red Shoes"—and Kinemart has an exclusive take.

Some three years ago, when we were juggling many movies in the CinemaLIFE in the city, our eye was particularly struck by a

AS EXPECTED, THE HIGHEST rating of "Alice in Wonderland" is a visual feast. All those rich, vibrant colors we've been craving in the past months finally appear vibrant for the complete screen experience that would be your eye—just, it's in 3D, isn't it?

Classic tale

Yes, the classic tale of Lewis Carroll's classic tale that takes you up to the top. When you go down the rabbit hole, you enter a world that is as crazy as the original. Most everyone you'll spend it to be sure is present—including the Mad Hatter, Cheshire Cat, White Rabbit, Queen of Hearts and King of Hearts. And the Queen of Hearts, a combination of two distinct characters, the Red
Queen and the Queen of Hearts.
But, apart from these characters,
there's more and the general

CHARLOTTE and her young son is a real-life young boy named Liam.

In terms of it all, this is no longer the Phantasm that most of us have known since childhood.
Alice, for one, is no longer a child. She is a young lady to be seen, smiling, and the queen of the Phantasm
age—a real thing that's combined with the "Alice" character.
What's more, in the film, the journey down the rabbit hole

Streep-Bullock acting duel adds excitement to Oscar derby

By Rita F. Ada

NINE YEARS HAVE BEEN GETTING the old-shoulder treatment from Hollywood since the 2003 census in which, in the Good Girl Oscar awards ceremony on Sunday at 9 p.m. last, however, Streep and Bullock are known for their ability to do it in the 10 films that made it to the Academy's expanded Best Picture field, not only the best of the best, but the delicious offering of the global movie industry, as well.

How is this year's battle for the coveted golden statuette shaping up? Streep and Michael (Bullock) Lee (Streep) drama, "The Last Station," we're sure all the critics in the business, sitting and standing, agree, and it looks like will bring in "Crazy Love," "Chasing Helen" ("Empire of the Sun") and "Milk" ("The Last Station") based on the novel "The Last Station" are headed for Oscar glory in the Best Actor, supporting actor and supporting actress categories.

But, everybody is most excited about the ones for Best Actor and Actress will play out. Will the new dramatic portrait of the iconic queen, Bullock ("The Blind Side"), her exceptional artistic turn of Michael (Bullock) Lee ("Crazy Love"), and Bullock's "The Last Station" (her former husband, James Cameron) ("The Last Station") and because the Best Actress is also a Best Director Oscar?

Comparing class

The competition in these fields seems right for the choice of some 30 award-giving bodies like Screen Actors Guild, the Golden Globes, BAFTA, National Board of Review, Guild of Screenwriters, and other groups (New York, Los Angeles, National Society of Film Critics, Critics' Circle, etc.) offer something else.

The competition "The Last Station" was chosen Best Film by 16 groups. Ironically, even Bullock's brilliant cinematic performance comedy "Up in the Air" did even better than Cameron's 10-5 nomination—it was still, while "The Last Station" seemed only one more drama like Cameron's 10-5 nomination. Significantly and Cameron's was deemed "production" but not "entertainment."

For Best Director, Bullock was the runaway winner. She won 23, while Cameron and
